Your Guide to Maintaining Giving Through the Summer Months

By: Ron Edmondson, CEO

Hi Church Leader,

As you know, the summer months can be rough for churches. With school out and the weather perfect, many families plan extended trips out of town. And even when people are in town, calendars fill up with barbecues, baseball games, and other summer fun.

But what if I told you that some churches we at Leadership Network are connected with don't see a drop in giving during these traditionally low-attended months? Not only does giving stay consistent, their members stay engaged and connected to the church even when they can't make it to the building.

In the free ebook, 10 Tips to Sustain Giving During the Summer Slump, our friends at Pushpay provide practical solutions for helping alleviate the pain of the summer slump (or any slump in attendance, really).

In this ebook you'll learn how to:

- Be proactive with planning...starting today!
- Engage your congregation even when they're not in attendance
- Encourage recurring giving in a way that feels natural
- And lots more!

More soon,
Ron Edmondson

PS: In this new digital world, there are so many ways to reach your people even when they don't darken the doors of your Sanctuary. How are you planning to stave off the Summer slump this year?
